

History of Interstate

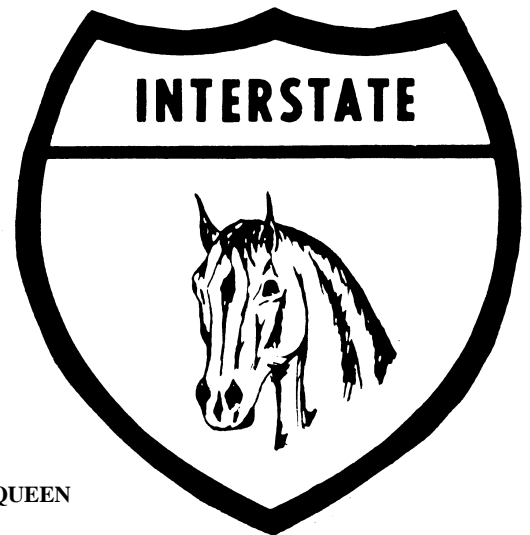

In 1957, a challenge was made by Oregon and answered by Washington. Twenty of the best horses from Washington and Oregon were brought to Portland to settle the issue of which state had the fastest game horses.

Oregon won the first meet and the outcome was the birth of the annual Interstate affair. Competition to date is shown on the chart below.

We know of nowhere in the country where such a meeting between two sides, as an Interstate Meet, is held. A meeting between the "cream of the crop" game horses and riders of the two states is a thrilling event, a great challenge, and the sportsmanship and keen spirit of competition as they are exhibited here are unsurpassed anywhere.

All of us connected with the Interstate Games Meet, love and admire good horses and top competitors, and when the meet is concluded we will have crowned Interstate Champions who would do a great job representing the Northwest in western game competition anywhere.

Not every one of us can be a champion, but each one participating must know that his effort is necessary and appreciated. No matter what the end result, and though we fiercely compete for honors, we will part in the same spirit of friendship that makes this event the great one it is.
